

Educational

FROM REPORT OF MR. DEXTER A. HAWKINS.
EDUCATION SHOULD BE COMPULSORY.

Government should prevent both crime and pauperism by extirpating the cause of each, to wit, ignorance. An educated citizen is of more value to himself, to society, and to the country than an ignorant one.

An examination, covering prominent points of crime in twenty States, made three years ago, developed the fact that even such education as our free common schools afford, adds, on the average, fifty per cent. to the producing power of the citizen; while a higher training increases it two or three hundred per cent.

He can do more and better work, from the street scavenger up to the most skilled mechanic, with the same expenditure of time and force, from the mere fact of possessing knowledge.

A well-educated commonwealth, however narrow its borders or poor its soil, soon becomes rich and powerful; while an ignorant one, even under the happiest circumstances of land and sky, falls a prey to anarchy, poverty and despotism.

Government is making ample provision for the secular education of all. Has it not a right then, to require all to be educated, either in the public schools at public expense, or in the private schools at private expense? We think it has, and that secular education sufficient for the common affairs of everyday life, and to enable the citizen to vote with intelligence should be compulsory.

Prussia and many other German States have tried it for years with the happiest results. It is her vigorous system of compulsory education that in sixty years has raised her from a bankrupt and conquered petty kingdom to the ruling empire of Europe, and made her the seat and home of intelligence, industry and wealth. Boston has had such a law for twenty years, and in the last ten they have reduced truancy from school sixty per cent. New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Michigan have now adopted it. England has given her school boards power to adopt it, and in London they have.

The effect is to increase the attendance at school, and decrease the number of juvenile delinquents. The time has arrived to try the experiment in the cities of our State, at least, if not in the whole State. This will cause every child to enjoy the benefits of the public school, or of some private school.

Wherever compulsory attendance has been tried long enough to determine its effects, the result has been so satisfactory that it has become a fixed and settled policy. Prussia, Saxony, and democratic Switzerland testify to its excellence. It is in harmony with a true democratic republic to require every citizen to qualify himself for the right of suffrage and for earning an independent living.

The tax payers who furnish the money to educate all the people have a right to require that all shall be educated, in order that crime and pauperism, and the public burdens caused by the same may be reduced to a minimum, and the ballot wielded only by intelligent voters.

The ballot in the hands of a corrupt and ignorant populace, is the torch of the incendiary, but with an intelligent people is the bulwark of liberty.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." It costs far less to prevent crime, pauperism and civil commotions, by educating the whole people, than it does to punish criminals, support paupers and maintain armies to suppress an ignorant and vicious population.

The class most in need of school training, seldom attend school at all, to wit, those whose parents through ignorance, poverty, idleness, or crime, give them little or no home education. This class can be reached only by the aid of compulsory and searching statutes. Every other remedy has been tried, without curing the disease.

By a judicious law, firmly but kindly enforced, compelling attendance during school hours upon some school, either public or private, the streets of our large cities could be cleared of the thousands of youthful vagrants from whose ranks now our army of criminals is almost entirely recruited. Each a law in a single generation would work a moral and intellectual reformation, and regeneration of our criminal and pauper classes, and save millions of money in the departments of Police, Charities and Corrections, and largely increase the wealth, influence, and producing power of the State.

The wisdom of developing and perfecting our free schools is admitted by the great majority of the community. A small minority oppose them on the ground that their religion is not specially and authoritatively taught therein.

PRUSSIAN EDUCATION IN ENGLAND.—The Cambridge University examines report unfavorably of the thoroughness of family education in England. Two hundred and twenty candidates presented themselves for examination. The subjects were divided into six groups. In diversity only two or three out of a hundred women could give a clear account of the connection of the thoughts in a chapter of Scripture submitted to them; in arithmetic the results were satisfactory. In English literature the candidates were pronounced very deficient. The examiners characterize as prevalent faults, "inaccuracy," "dissipancy" and "slang." In modern languages the women came off well; only one attempted to pass in Greek, and but a few in Latin. Women fail to meet these strict tests wholly from the want of thoroughness in their education. The absolute necessity of thoroughness is not as a rule imposed upon them by their educators.

MARRIED.—ROBERT W. BROOKLYN, by Rev. J. V. Sanders, January 28, Jas. T. Roby, of New York, to Francis R. Reed, of Plainfield.

DIED

WARD.—At Bloomfield, Jan. 27, 1874, Kate Station, youngest child of Edward G. and Sarah C. Ward, aged 1 year and 6 months.
